

Quest on the Road

We've been getting wonderful journal reports for the two Quest tours that are going on right now. Cara Miller and Kevin Dyels have apparently wowed Austria and made some very good connections for future European projects. The Wings Company has been very busy in Maine. The feedback from the daily workshops has been very positive. Tonight the company gives a public performance of Road Signs and Mosaic. Tomorrow night in Vienna an international cast of deaf and hearing performers will present The Penal Colony (world premier) and I Carry the Flag. Both shows have been adapted for the stage by Tim McCarty and produced by Arbos Theatre (Austria).

You can check out the tour journals yourself on the Quest website: www.quest4arts.org

Big River

Word has it the rehearsals for the Ford's Theatre production of Big River are going very well. The company had an invited dress rehearsal last night and it now goes into previews in preparation for opening night next Wednesday. Several Quest staff and Board members will attend the opening.

Reservations are coming in quickly for the Quest benefit at Big River on Wednesday, April 13. We have posted a flyer about the event on our website:

Thank You

Thanks to all of you who have made cash donations to Quest recently. Your giving is critical part of insuring that Quest can continue to carry out its groundbreaking work.

A Personal Thank You

I want to thank all of you who have called or emailed with concerns for my health and Linda's health. We are doing very well now. As many of you know, I have had three bouts with pneumonia along with asthmatic inflammation over the last three months. I am feeling much better and am very near full strength. Linda, too is pretty much back on track. It has been a long, sometimes scary ordeal. I'm not quite out of the woods yet, but I am feeling energized and normal (I know what you're going to say, "Tim, you've never been normal.").

The phone calls, emails, cards and letters that I have received from so many Quest family members has helped sustain me through this difficult period are the. Your concern, offers to help, and love are deeply, deeply appreciated.

Sincerely,
Tim McCarty
